

Edward Wilkin

Conductor, pianist and singer Eddie Wilkin encourages all to find their artistic voice through music. He comes to this philosophy from past experiences at home, in school and through his recent musical activity.

Eddie studied Music Education at Castleton State College, located in Castleton, Vermont. As a result of the opportunities he had with the ensembles under the supervision of Sherrill Blodget and Glenn Giles, he realized that he wanted to pursue choral conducting. After graduating with a Bachelors degree of Music in Music Education, he went on to pursue a Masters degree in Choral Conducting from the University of Rhode Island where he studied with Mark Conley, Ann Danis, Gene Pollart and Brian Cardany.

During his undergraduate and graduate career Eddie has been an active conductor of large instrumental and choral groups such as Symphony Orchestra, Wind Ensemble, Concert Choir, Chamber Singers as well as Chamber Strings.

Currently he is the Director of Choral Activities at Fair Haven Union High School, located in Fair Haven, Vermont. He is also the Artistic Director and founder of The Slate Valley Community Chorus, the Conductor for the Rutland City Band, and the newly appointed Conductor for Lakes Region Youth Orchestra Concert Band.

Eddie thoroughly enjoys working with all ages in vocal and instrumental ensembles of sizes and experience levels.
